

Growing Kid's God's Way – This Week at Home

There is a direct relationship between doing the homework and success in applying the principles. You will need more than just a casual understanding of what you are about to learn. You may be asked to share some of your insights and discussions of the following questions.

Chapter 2 - Right Beginnings

1. a) Read Chapter 2 in your workbook.
b) Answer Questions for Review in your workbook.
2. Are your children welcome members of your family, or are they the center of your family. List some activities that would move parents away from child-centeredness and share them with the class next week.
3. Practice Couch Time this week. Strive for 4-5 days per week. Keep track of Couch Times to help produce consistency. Note how it helps your family. When class meets next week, share the responses from your children. If your schedule is unusual, please be prepared to share what innovations you needed to implement in order to have Couch Time.
4. If you were not present for the Foundations of the Family class, review the notes posted online <https://www.gracebibleny.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/08/001a-Foundations-of-the-Family-Text.pdf>

Questions for Review

1. What is marital intimacy? What does it involve?
2. For what reason did God create woman and establish marriage?
3. Write out four principles that govern family relationships, underlining the key words in each principle.
4. Define child-centered parenting and give some reasons why it is wrong.
5. Compare and contrast me-ism with we-ism.
6. What is meant by the statement, “All children seem to be born with a radar device that hones in on parental conflict”?
